DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Claims 1-51 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected group, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on December 12, 2008. Applicant also added claim 62. Claims 52-62 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 52-58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Based on Supreme Court precedent, a method/process claim must (1) be tied to another statutory class of invention (such as a particular apparatus) (see at least Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. 175, 184 (1981); Parker v. Flook, 437 U.S. 584, 588 n.9 (1978); Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 70 (1972); Cochrane v. Deener, 94 U.S. 780, 787-88 (1876)) or (2) transform underlying subject matter (such as an article or materials) to a different state or thing (see at least Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 71 (1972)). A method/process claim that fails to meet one of the above requirements is not in compliance with the statutory requirements of 35 U.S.C. 101 for patent eligible subject matter. Here the claims fails to meet the above requirements because the steps are neither tied to another statutory class of invention (such as a particular apparatus) nor physically transform underlying subject matter (such as an article or materials) to a different state or thing.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 59-61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 59 recites a "program system" in the preamble, however the body of the claim does not recite a system structure. Therefore the claim is rejected as being indefinite. Since the system claim is also not tied to a particular apparatus it is rejected under 101 as being directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 59-61 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Based on Supreme Court precedent, a method/process claim must (1) be tied to another statutory class of invention (such as a particular apparatus) (see at least Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. 175, 184 (1981); Parker v. Flook, 437 U.S. 584, 588 n.9 (1978); Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 70 (1972); Cochrane v. Deener, 94 U.S. 780, 787-88 (1876)) or (2) transform underlying subject matter (such as an article or materials) to a different state or thing (see at least Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 71 (1972)). Even though the claim recites "a consumer loyalty program system" the body of the claim does not recite any structure of a system. Here the claims fails to meet the above requirements because the steps are neither tied to another statutory class of invention (such as a particular apparatus) nor physically transform underlying subject matter (such as an article or materials) to a different state or thing.

Claim 62 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Under the statute, the claimed invention must fall into one of four recognized statutory classes on invention, namely, a process (or method), a machine (or system); an article of manufacture; or a composition of matter. The claim must be given their broadest reasonable interpretation consistent with the specification, and the specification indicates that the “means for” identifying consumer can be performed using a software or hardware. When given its broadest interpretation the “means for” step can be performed by a software. Thus computer program code or signal not claimed as embodied in computer executable media are descriptive material per se and are not statutory because they are neither physical “things” nor statutory processes. Such claimed computer program, code or carrier wave signal does not define structural and functional interrelationships between the signal and other claimed elements of the invention, which permit the data signal's functionality to be realized (see MPEP section 2106). Since there is no composition of matters or system components claimed to render the claims statutory, the claims are rejected as being directed to a non-statutory matter (see MPEP section 2106).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 52-62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(c) as being anticipated by Voltmer et al. (US 7,398,225 B2).

Regarding claims 52-58, Voltmer teaches identifying a most-valued consumer based on at least one criterion (see col. 7 lines 50-67); providing a recurring cash value benefit to the consumer and the consumer purchasing goods or services using the cash value benefit; wherein the at least one criterion includes a net amount spent, store's gross profit margin based on the purchase etc., (col. 8 lines 1-32, col. 9 lines 23-26, col. 10 line 25 to col. 11 line 25).

Regarding claims 59-61, Voltmer teaches a list including a most-valued consumer; distribution system to distribute a recurring cash value benefit to the consumer; the cash value benefit to be used at a retail store and the retail store including means for accepting the cash value benefit as payment for goods or services (see col. 7 lines 50-67 and col. 8 lines 1-32). Examiner would like to point out the language "the cash value benefit to be used at a retail store as payment for goods or services" is just intended used for the cash value, is therefore considered nonfunctional descriptive material. Thus, this nonfunctional descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (fed. Cir. 1994).

Regarding claim 62, Voltmer teaches a means for identifying a most-valued consumer, the means comprising a mathematical algorithm ... (see col. 7 lines 50-67 and col. 8 lines 1-32).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
